PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Summer 2014 Mentor, Google summer of Code (GSoC), MoinMoin, <http://code.google.com/soc/>,
<https://moinmo.in/GoogleSoc2014/>.
MoinMoin is an advanced, user friendly and extensible wiki engine with a large community of users. I helped Saurabh Kathpalia to improve the ticket and blog items.
September 2012 – Developer, Paylogic, <http://www.paylogic.nl>.
September 2013 Development of a web-based ticketing system.
December 2011 – Intern, Paylogic.
September 2012 I developed an abstraction layer that communicates with social network websites (such as Facebook and Twitter) and provides a simple API used by Paylogic services.
At the same time I wrote my thesis, exploring how to gather tweets related to social events.
August 2010 – Researcher, Faculty of Computer Science, Free University of Bozen–Bolzano.
September 2011 Development of a completeness management system initially described in my bachelor thesis. The aim of the project is to come up with a demonstrator for the completeness management system.

- Summer 2009 Student, GSoC and MoinMoin, <http://www.moinmo.in/GoogleSoc2009/>.
I extended MoinMoin with advanced data structures to support various backends for data storage. Also, I redesigned an internal search engine and replaced the library for an external search engine.
My work was merged with the main development branch and became a part of MoinMoin version 1.9 released in December 2009.
- September 2005 – May 2008 Teacher, Progmeistars (programming courses), <http://progmeistars.lv/>.
I worked as an instructor giving lectures to teenagers. I specialized in two courses. The first course, Logo I, was about basic programming notions such as variables, conditional statements, loops and procedures. During the second course, Logo II, I described more advanced features of the language as functions, lists, recursion and higher order functions. Classes took place 2-3 times a week during a study year, and every working day during one summer month.
